There appears to be a discrepancy between the 2018 tax filing status and the marital status that was reported on the FAFSA. Before we can proceed with the processing of your financial aid, our office will need to confirm that the information as reported on the FAFSA is correct. Please review your tax filing status and marital status that you reported on the FAFSA and complete the form below and our office will review.

What is your 2018 tax filing status?

What is your marital status as of the date you signed your FAFSA?

If Married/Remarried, did you include your spouse's 2018 tax/income information on the FAFSA?*

If your current status is married, but your tax filing status is something other than married, you are required to provide your spouse's 2018 tax/income information on the FAFSA. This would include combining your spouse's taxes paid with your taxes paid and your spouse's adjusted gross income with your adjusted gross income.*

If Divorced, Separated or Widowed did you exclude your former spouse's 2018 tax/income information from the FAFSA?*

Yes No

If any of the information that you listed above does not match what is currently reported on the FAFSA, you will need to log into your 2020-2021 FAFSA and make the necessary changes.
